Last month, he elaborated upon that sentiment and said he would "consider" a campaign, and now a "clarification" is in order. Yesterday, I did a "media blitz" with a dozen local and national radio stations, as well as newspapers in NJ, and the perception is that I was actually saying that I would run for Senate. I am not. My wife and I and our two young children have already moved to New Jersey and I have set up our family life here. We are still considering our options, but we have no plans for any campaign. So what did we discuss last night? I have a background in the Law and Business, and I have always prided myself on my ability to serve as an effective bridge between the private sector and public policy.
