The groundbreaking technology allows players and coaches to not only re-create their favorite rivalries and training sessions in FIFA 22, but also take a new approach to developing their own player through gameplay designed by the player using the tools in the FIFA Training Center. The latest version of the EA SPORTS FIFA franchise will deliver more than 260 groundbreaking innovations, including: UEFA Champions League™ integration, Dynamic presentation and unparalleled experience of the world's greatest sporting competitions, and A new game engine delivering unparalleled ball physics and more fluent player movements. The technology behind its iconic, award-winning football games, EA SPORTS FIFA Soccer and EA SPORTS FIFA on Xbox One, is based on Lucasfilm's proprietary Performance-Capture Technology, which is used by leading athletes for motion capture. With over two decades of success, EA SPORTS provides the most popular and critically-acclaimed sports games ever made, a business unit that is the world's leading sports game developer, and a powerful and passionate community of sports gamers worldwide. EA is a division of Electronic Arts Inc. Visit for more information.

In recent times, with the introduction of power-assisted steering apparatuses and steer-by-wire steering apparatuses into vehicles, there has been a need for a steering wheel to be installed on a steering shaft being included in the steering apparatus for operation with a mechanical feel. However, simply installing a steering wheel on a steering shaft may increase a vibration or noise during vehicle operation or inhibit a feel of vehicle operation. Therefore, for conventional steering wheels, to reduce such a vibration and noise and achieve a feel of vehicle operation, the relative angular position between the steering wheel and steering shaft is controlled.

Q: How do I get the real position of the mouse pointer? I'm using the Windows.Devices.Point class to get the mouse position. `Point mousePosition = Point.Empty; Point preMousePosition = new Point(); // This usually returns 75, or about 40 ems. if (wmcMouse.Position.X >= 0) mousePosition = Point.Empty;` I want to know where on the screen the mouse pointer is. So, I need to know where on the screen the mouse pointer is relative to something. I think I want to get the position of the mouse pointer relative to the screen, not the window. How do
